Jackson seeks Humphrey fans

By The Associated Press
Sen. Henry M. Jackson says he wants support in Pennsylvania's April 27 presidential primary from Democrats who favor Minnesota Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, a noncandidate who has said he would accept a draft from a deadlocked nominating convention.

Meanwhile, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, continuing his criticism of President Ford's foreign policy, promised over the weekend that exiled Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn could eat dinner at the Reagan White House anytime.

Reagan, the challenger for the GOP nomination whose next major battle with Ford is in the May 1 Texas primary, referred to reports of several months ago that Ford decided not to invite Solzhenitsyn to the White House because it might sour U.S.-Soviet relations. Ford later issued an open invitation to Solzhenitsyn, but the Nobel Prize winner declined.

In a Saturday appearance in Texas, Ford defended his foreign policy and said his campaign is growing stronger in the state.

Jackson, on ABC News' "Issues and Answers" program Sunday, said Pennsylvania "is the strongest of all 50 states for Humphrey. A number of people here have Hubert Humphrey as their preference, but they are going to vote for me. I'm not asking my supporters to take a loyalty oath that they're for Jackson all the way."

The Washington senator said his hold on such delegates would depend "on the total number of delegates I have and their direct unequivocal support. Whether we can hold off raids depends on our over-all strength."

Jackson and Arizona Rep.

Morris Udall plan to campaign in Pennsylvania today, while the leader in the Democratic delegate race so far, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, was to spend another day at home in Plains, Ga. He is due in Pennsylvania Tuesday.

The state's primary offers 178 delegates.

Reagan, who spoke Saturday in Seattle, took Sunday off.

President and Mrs. Ford were at home Sunday. The President scheduled a reception for this afternoon for his election committee.

Jackson was scheduled to visit Pittsburgh in the afternoon and Wilkes-Barre in the evening. Udall planned to go after votes in Philadelphia, with a factory tour, handshaking and a meeting with newspaper editors and students before flying to Pittsburgh on his agenda.

Udall over the weekend announced the appointment of a new campaign director, but denied that any shakeup was involved.

Humphrey, reiterating that he is not a candidate but would accept the nomination if the convention deadlocks, predicted he would win the general election if nominated.

He said he won't try to dissuade uncommitted delegates from supporting him, and wouldn't rule out appearances that might conflict with the campaigns of the announced candidates.

Jackson, meanwhile, continued to attack Carter's use of the phrase "ethnic purity" — for which Carter has apologized — saying the apology could only add to the damage.

Jackson said, "It raises the question of his judgment." Jackson said Carter had insulted "just about everybody" with the statement.

Hearnes calls for meeting with Levi

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says he will seek a meeting with U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi to get a U.S. attorney in Kansas City "off my back or say something the people can understand."

Hearnes' remarks Saturday night were directed at U.S. Atty. Bert C. Hurn, who made public a statement Hearnes had prepared for him to issue that said there never has been a criminal investigation of Hearnes or of alleged corruption in Hearnes' administration.

Hurn said he rejected the proposal because he could not agree with all portions of it. The U.S. attorney declined to elaborate, saying he would issue his own statement in about a week.

The report was published in Sunday's editions of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Hearnes said Hurn had specifically requested that he prepare the proposed statement after the former governor announced April 1 that the Internal Revenue Service was discontinuing a criminal investigation of Hearnes for possible income tax fraud.

"He (Hurn) said I should prepare a proposed statement and then he would agree or disagree," Hearnes said. "I'm going to ask for a meeting with the U.S. Attorney General to get Hurn to either get off my back or say something the people can understand."

Bars cut by jail escapees

2 prisoners escape from Scott County jail

BENTON — Two prisoners escaped from the Scott County jail this morning.

Scott County Sheriff John Dennis said Wayne Lee Harris, 19, of Sikeston Route Three and Charles Alex Heard, 39, of St. Louis escaped by cutting two bars off the cell they shared with two other prisoners. Sheriff Dennis believes the two used a hacksaw blade to cut through the bars.

Dispatcher Edward Sadler discovered the two men missing while making his rounds about 7 a.m.

Neither man was armed. The sheriff believes the two men escaped in a 1965 blue and white Chevrolet.

Heard was being held for the armed robbery of Baker's Finer Foods in Scott City and also faces an armed robbery charge in Cape County.

Harris was being held for burglary and stealing in connection with a break-in in Morley.

Heard is described as a white male, 6 feet tall, weighing 165 pounds. He has a medium build and complexion, green eyes and long brown hair. Identifying marks include a tattoo on the right arm.

Harris is a white male, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. He has brown hair and blue eyes. Identifying marks include a one and a half-inch scar at the outside of the left eye.

Sheriff Dennis said all state law enforcement agencies have been notified of the escape.

$70 stolen in burglary

CHARLESTON — Stader's Highway Market on East Marshall Street was burglarized sometime between 7:15 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 a.m. Sunday and approximately $70 in nickels, dimes and quarters was stolen.

A back door on the west end of the building had been pried open.

Investigation is continuing.

Money bills in spotlight

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An abbreviated week's worth of work, which will deal mostly with appropriations bills, awaits the Missouri legislature today.

The first eight appropriations bills, hammered out during a conference committee late last week, will be taken up in the House today, and after approval there, are expected to go to the Senate Tuesday.

The bills make up the lion's share of the state's proposed $2.5 billion budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Approval of the bills this week would put the legislature on the road toward meeting its self-imposed deadline of approving appropriations bills one week before the end of the session.

Still to be considered, however, are the appropriations bills which provide emergency and supplemental funding for all state agencies for the rest of this fiscal year, and a measure which provides money for Missouri's capital improvement projects.

Because of the approach of Easter, lawmakers have scheduled a one-week break to begin Wednesday, one day earlier than their usual final work day.

The Senate is expected to resume deliberations on Sen. John Schneider's attempt to take up consideration of a bill which would abolish the state sales tax on drugs and provide a $14 credit per person as a reimbursement for the sales tax on food.

To make up for the revenue lost through that part of the proposal, the St. Louis County Democrat proposes to reduce from 100 per cent to 80 per cent the federal income tax exemption from state income tax and abolish the state corporate tax deduction for federal corporate tax payments.

Schneider's bill is far down the Senate's agenda, but he began an effort late last week to take up the bill out of order because he said it would generate more revenue for Missouri.

The House gave final approval to a drug sales tax exemption bill of its own last week.

At the top of the list of House-approved bills awaiting Senate consideration is a measure requiring the state to take over all costs for the care of indigents in mental health division facilities, instead of making the counties pay those costs.

The House is expected to return to work on several measures moved ahead of others because of their importance. At the top of that list is a bill intended to bring the state into compliance with new federal requirements under the Highway Beautification Act.

Unless those requirements, dealing with the removal of billboards along highways, are met, the state could be penalized $11 million in federal highway funds.

The billboard compliance measure has been a major issue before the legislature in past sessions.

10 are injured in area accidents

Nine persons received minor injuries and one pedestrian was moderately injured in seven area traffic accidents over the weekend, the highway patrol announced today.

Gary James, 22, of Patton received minor injuries at 1 a.m. Saturday when he fell asleep at the wheel of his car, which ran off the road and overturned on Highway 72 half a mile west of the junction with Highway 51 near Patton. James was not hospitalized, according to the patrol.

Joyce Ann Simmons, 32, of East Prairie escaped injury.

One person was injured in an accident at 3:30 p.m. Saturday one-fourth mile east of East Prairie on Highway 105.

According to the patrol, accident occurred when a car driven by Joyce Ann Simmons, 32, of East Prairie stopped at a stop sign to make a right turn and was struck from behind by a pickup truck driven by Eddie Earl Faire, Jr., 29, of Marble Hill.

Faire received minor injuries and was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital for treatment.

Two persons were injured in a three-car accident on Highway 34 three miles east of Piedmont in Wayne County at 4:10 p.m. Saturday. According to the patrol, the accident occurred when a car driven by Dena Lorraine Vandiver, 32, of West Plains slowed behind another vehicle and was struck from behind by a car driven by Barbara Jean Miller, 33, of Florissant. The Miller vehicle was then struck from behind by a car driven by Dennis Wayne Huff, 18, of Piedmont.

The Miller woman and a passenger in her car, Gladys Blanche Moss, 63, of Des Arc, her mother, received minor injuries and were treated and released at Wayne County Medical Center in Piedmont.

Anthony Joe Roberts, 18, of Essex, a pedestrian, received moderate injuries at 1:55 a.m. Sunday when he was struck by an eastbound pickup truck driven by Dale Anthony Reed, 23, of Dexter.

According to the patrol, Roberts was lying in the roadway on Highway 114 in Essex when he was struck by the Reed pickup. Roberts was taken to the Dexter Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Douglas Kirk Flannery, 21, of Bernie and a passenger in his car, Billy Causey, 21, of Bernie received minor injuries at 7:30 p.m. Sunday when the vehicle ran off a curve in Route 22 six miles southwest of Dexter at a high rate of speed and struck a dirt embankment.

Both victims were taken to the Dexter hospital for treatment.

Two persons were injured at 1:45 p.m. Sunday in a one-car accident on Route N seven miles west of Delta.

Robin Renee Tankersley, 17, of Delta received minor injuries and was taken to St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau after the pickup truck she was driving ran off the road, down a steep embankment and overturned. Matthew Quinn, 3, of Delta a passenger in the vehicle, received minor injuries and was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau for treatment.

Kenneth Sutton, 16, of Des Arc sustained minor injuries at 6:45 p.m. Sunday when his car ran off Highway 143 and overturned five miles south of Des Arc.

Sutton was treated at Wayne County Medical Center.

MANY IN CONGRESS RETIRING

There is a saying peculiar to the Washington, D.C., area that once you visit there, you are very likely to contract "Potomac fever" and will never want to leave. The exodus of retirees from Capitol Hill this year, however, indicates the cure for the fever may be at hand.

In 1974, the voluntary mass exodus of Members of Congress was regarded as a major political development. While more noiselessly being carried out this year, the flow is just as great as it was two years ago, reports the authoritative Congressional Quarterly magazine.

"As of mid-February, there were 34 announced departures from the House and seven from the Senate," says Congressional Quarterly in its February 21 issue. Although the total includes some who are leaving the House of Representatives to seek other political offices — chiefly the Senate — the number who are giving up the political ghost at a relatively young age is striking.

Why would a man turn his back on an exciting career that long has been the stuff of dreams — one that pays nearly $45,000 a year and has fringe benefits to make kings of old envious? Obviously there are various reasons. Some of the most interesting — and perhaps most telling — were revealed recently by one of the retirees, Rep. James F. Hastings, a New York Republican.

Hastings, 49, is voluntarily retiring after four two-year terms in the House to go into business. Hastings, $19,000 in debt and deeply frustrated over the inability of Congress to solve major national problems, told the Washington Post that "I keep hearing that all politicians are crooks and I'm trying to figure out where I missed out."

He is also bitter over the lack of appreciation among his constituents for his legislative accomplishments. "In the minds of many people, those things don't count," he said in the interview. "Number one, they are not aware of them. And number two, what's important is what I can do for them on a personal basis."

There should be a lesson in Hastings' lament — which no doubt could be echoed by many among the other retirees. One lesson is that we, the American people, have indeed subjected our representatives to unrelenting criticism. Much of it has been justified, but some of it undoubtedly hasn't been. Unfortunately, such low esteem for politicians generally has driven from office some genuinely good men — along with others we won't miss.

Human nature is the same the country over. No store has a hex on any group of customers. High income as well as low income families trade with the neighborhood store, the chain store, the corner gas station and the dime store.

Before a retailer assumes his customers "are different" he should read the newspaper subscription list, the tax list, and the census report. There are his customers mixed with all customers. Check on who owns automatic washers, who drive automobiles, and who wear fur coats and nylons.

They do not constitute a "different" group, and a merchant can reach all in his newspaper.

IT TAKESA THIEF...

Numerous former criminals are finding a useful place in society by serving as "management consultants" to protect businesses against crimes they, the consultants, once served time for.

According to a story in the Wall Street Journal, an apartment complex in Washington, D.C., for example, is guarded by a security force of ex-felons. They work for a detective agency run by released convicts.

In Los Angeles, a computer expert who was sent to prison for defrauding a telephone company of $1 million now runs a security service that advises companies how to prevent computer fraud. He has also conducted university seminars on computer crime.

Other companies are employing ex-burglars and safecrackers "who know the score" to case their joints in order to point out deficiencies in their security systems. "We've hired psychiatrists and psychologists in the past to tell us how to cut crime in our stores," says the vice president of one discount store chain. "But nothing seemed to work. These ex-robbers have given us a new insight into the problem."

The success of these reformed criminals depends, of course, upon a continuing supply of unreformed criminals. Fortunately for them, if not for society, there seems little prospect of any shortage developing in that category.

INFLATION DOES NOT HELP UNEMPLOYMENT
By causing a shift of resources from capital formation to consumption and to government spending, the Federal tax system clearly impairs efficiency and retards growth and innovation.

The increase in both inflation and instability in the past decade is not coincidental. It's conventional wisdom that inflation is not all bad, because it stimulates employment and capital formation. That's incorrect, said David Meiselman of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Inflation is not a cure for unemployment, but its cause. "I do not see how we can somehow rid ourselves of inflation without curbing the excessive use of the printing press."

"The staggering deficit of the Federal government must be eliminated, primarily through expenditure control," Professor Meiselman's paper will be published in Tax Foundation's January Tax Review.

FOGCO'S OMINOUS SHADOW

The petroleum deficiency has brought more than a gasoline shortage to the U.S. It has introduced the basic issue of whether the competitive, free enterprise system is to endure. Political vilification of the oil industry has been logically followed by proposals to put the government in the oil business via a measure called the Consumer Energy Act of 1974.

A top official of the American Petroleum Institute calls the Act, "a stacked deck in a deadly serious game that may well determine the fate of the competitive enterprise system in America." The proposal, which is under consideration by Congress, would, among other things, establish a Federal Oil and Gas Corporation (FOGCO) and extend Federal Power Commission control to intrastate sales of natural gas and all sales of oil and oil products. The industry executive, in a letter to the nation's 500 leading corporations declared, "I am alarmed by this specious proposal out of concern for the future of the country as well as out of concern for...the petroleum industry. It seems to me that adoption of the principles on which this proposed act is based would establish a precedent leading to the nationalization of every major industry in America, and long before the last industry fell the American people would find their traditional freedoms no more than hollow slogans."

It should be noted that the writer of this disturbing message to colleagues of the business world, speaks first of his concern as a citizen for the future of his country. The fact that, as chairman of an oil company, he also speaks authoritatively for the oil industry should lend credence to his words—words that deserve consideration by all citizens.

ONLY ONE WAY
Health care is a highly personal experience. Inasmuch as every human being in the nation will eventually need such care, the revolutionary changes now occurring in the U.S. medical system are of the utmost direct concern to every person in the country.

Consider the matter of Por-fessional Standards Review Organizations. Under a law passed by Congress in 1972, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare must set up committees (PSROs) throughout the U.S. to review the cost, quality and kind of medical services delivered to patients under the federally-financed Medicare and Medicaid programs. The law authorizes HEW to examine and computerize in its files doctors' business records, as well as the confidential medical records, of all patients—including those not being cared for under federally-financed programs. This is a dangerous and unwarranted invasion of medical privacy. The problem now is to integrate the PSROs into medical care peer review committees already operating effectively under the direction of hospitals, state medical societies, the health insurance industry and governmental agencies at other levels.

For example, Blue Shield, in California provides health care protection for some 1.2 million subscribers and handles around 37 million claims annually. By working with state and county medical organizations and medical care foundations, an effective program has been established to monitor and control costs and review the quality of care delivered. Information concerning fees and methods of treatment are computerized to provide average profiles against which the care given to patients can be judged. During 1973, over 500,000 claims were examined in detail, and 1,500 formal investigations were undertaken.

No PSRO committee created by a federal agency to cover an arbitrary geographical area could replace the local knowledge, expertise and cooperative effort already established and effective in the peer review programs. Cost control and improvement in quality and availability of health care will come from this experience, and that involves using the many components of the U.S. medical system that now work exceptionally well.

RIGHT TO WORK MERITS DEBATE

Reed Larson

Press reports have suggested that I may enter the presidential race as a "single-issue" candidate on behalf of the Right to Work principle. These reports are correct.

While I have not yet reached a final decision, I want to remove any misunderstanding about my possible candidacy.

My reason for considering a presidential candidacy is not hard to understand. Simply stated, it stems from my disgust at watching the current gaggle of presidential hopefuls attacking Right to Work laws while parading around the country at taxpayers' expense (using federal matching funds). Most Americans — Democrats and Republicans alike — oppose compulsory unionism by a wide margin. Yet, the Democratic candidates have all spent the first few months of the campaign trying to convince union officials of their undying devotion to the idea of forcing workers into unwanted unions. Sen. Henry Jackson, for example, is berating candidates Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall for having at some point in their past supported the right of states to outlaw union coercion. Congressman Udall has responded by apologizing to the union bosses he may have offended, and by promising to lead a one-man crusade against Right to Work if the union bosses will help him get elected. Governor Carter, not to be outdone, says compulsory unionism is okay with him, and says he'd be "happy," as President, to sign legislation repealing Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which would keep states from protecting their workers.

It's high time someone stepped forward to add some balance to the political discussion — and that is exactly what I would hope to do as a presidential candidate.

I strongly believe — and I think most Americans share this view — that the monopoly power growing out of compulsory unionism is a major national problem. This power has so distorted the political process and thwarted the operation of representative government that almost every facet of our national life is damaged.

The fact that presidential candidates are using taxpayers' funds to preserve and extend compulsory unionism simply compounds the injury. As a result, I have asked myself if I have a responsibility, as a citizen, to use whatever public recognition and identification I may have with the Right to Work cause to undertake a presidential campaign on this issue.

It is a tough decision. I am not a politician, and I certainly must consider my administrative obligation to the Right to Work organizations and their 500,000 contributors.

In addition, I would feel uneasy about dipping into the public till to finance a campaign, even one based on an idea favored by the overwhelming majority of taxpayers — an idea which I feel is critical for the survival of free society.

On the other hand, can I afford to stand on the sidelines while anti-Right to Work candidates rip off the taxpayers for campaign funds to be used against the public interest?

Those are the questions I will be answering in the next few days. Your counsel and advice will be warmly welcome.

(Larson is executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee. His column appears in several hundred newspapers.)

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Eyes Left: See Richardson as Ford's Running - Mate To Net Progressives and Some Labor

WASHINGTON — These days Gerald Ford is watching ever more closely the slowly, but ever escalating, White House influence of Secretary of Commerce Elliot Richardson, the Massachusetts "progressive" who really began his Washington career as a special assistant to Attorney General Robert Kennedy.

Richardson does his homework. He's steadily "in there pitching" at the Economic Policy Board's early-morning executive committee sessions in the White House Roosevelt Room. He's getting more "input clout." And he's beginning to crack the caked dust off the Commerce Department, which has been unpolitical since Herbert Hoover. There isn't any doubt among Oval Office intimates that Richardson, having held three other cabinet posts and an ambassadorship, is moving "low profile" to be the "liberal" replacement for Nelson Rockefeller on Jerry Ford's presidential ticket. If and when.

And there's absolutely no (repeat no) doubt that candidate Ford is giving this very serious confidential consideration. For several reasons:

First, there isn't any doubt that several highly placed labor-political strategists (one of whom has put it in writing) have reason to believe that Massachusetts Sen. Ted Kennedy is organizing swiftly behind scenes for a grab at the Democratic presidential nomination. Some of Kennedy's scouts have been in the field asking for carefully selected public podiums from which to make carefully selected speeches on carefully selected international issues. He needs none of these if he's merely running for reelection.

In the event of such a Democratic candidacy, Mr. Ford believes he could well use his own liberal gentleman from Massachusetts. It's after all somewhat difficult to tell Kennedy and Richardson apart politically in their native state.

Further, there are those close indeed to the President who believe he'll have to move left of the Republican center during the campaign.

Their reckoning is that once President Ford gets the nomination the GOP right wing must turn to him. The alternative would be either Scoop Jackson, who almost literally would become America's first labor president; or Hubert Humphrey, who needs no other introduction, or the arcane Jimmy Carter, who needs considerable introduction. Or Ted Kennedy.

Also, Jerry Ford, having lost virtually all effective contact with mainstream American labor (except for the liaison between special economic White House Executive Director Bill Seidman and the AFL-CIO's second highest official Lane Kirkland) certainly isn't anxious to make it impossible for the big teamsters brotherhood to back him.

After the recent strike crisis solidarity which the White House gave teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons, such reciprocal political support isn't unlikely. This White House backstage backing at Arlington Heights enabled "Fitz" and his bargaining team to come up with a contract victory which becomes more dazzling as its small print is analyzed.

In the end the union's gains may top a 36 per cent wage-fringe increase over three years.

The teamsters White House collective bargaining strategy was as effective as it was traditional. Namely, split the employers. Get one group to sign and then quietly inform the other owner associations that some firms have capitulated so you'd better get into line, too. Thus it was that when the independent Chicago teamster union (not an International Brotherhood of Teamsters affiliate) signed for a high wage-fringe rate, Labor Secretary Bill Usery hurried to the holdouts, the Trucking Employers, Inc. bargainers and urged, in that soft southern drawl of his, why don't you go along, the others are in.

This enabled "Fitz" to hold steady for the big wage and fringe demands he had put on the table several nights before the strike flared. The sight of Usery and Fitzsimmons working together had its impact. And the strategy was approved hourly by the Oval Office.

So the teamsters have much for which to be grateful. And they owe the Democratic candidates, collectively and individually, very little.

And looming above both Fitz and the President is the man with a permanent built-in political machine — AFL-CIO chief of chiefs George Meany. Meany disdains them both. He's on his triphammer kick. The other day in Florida, though recovering from a persistent case of the ambulatory flu, Meany took the Operating Engineers platform and clobbered Jerry Ford, just as the labor leader once began hitting Dick Nixon.

Meany charged the President with abandoning his "integrity." "About the same time in Washington the building and construction union departmental chiefs were throwing their proverbial hard hats into the air for Jackson, cheering him wildly; whooping it up for Sen. Humphrey and two or three other powerful congressional favorites. All Democrats. This came during the construction trades massive (3,000 delegate) annual job and legislative conference here earlier in the week.

It would have taken a merger of the Pinkertons and the Secret Service to find a representative of the Ford administration on that platform. The President got the hint. And he doesn't like to lose automatically the center's left of center. So there are those who say, if it's not Rockefeller, it could well be Richardson in that second slot.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

With LES WHITTEN

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Hughes Remains a Mystery
WASHINGTON — The aura of mystery which surrounded Howard Hughes while he was alive still lingers after his death.

We have determined that the famous recluse, rich beyond comprehension, died of the symptoms of a neglected pauper.

He spent his last days in the penthouse of one of Acapulco's most fashionable hotels. Yet he lived in unbelievable filth.

He commanded a $2 billion financial empire. Yet he refused to let aides attend him, shunned human contact, neglected his own physical needs. Most of the time, he was in a catatonic stupor.

Last week, he turned up in Houston, a "shriveled" and "emaciated" corpse. Sources privy to his condition say his frail, 90-pound body was dehydrated and covered with sores.

The Internal Revenue Service has started an investigation to determine whether this shrunken hulk of a man controlled his own affairs. There is evidence that he may have been incompetent and incapacitated.

Should this be established, the authorities will demand to know why a guardian wasn't appointed to manage his affairs. Every last dollar will be traced to determine whether his associates siphoned off any of his fortune.

In an attempt to unravel the Howard Hughes mystery, we have sent reporters to Acapulco, Houston and Los Angeles. We have spoken to every source we could find who might have had contact with Hughes.

We have pieced together the portraits, strangely, of two quite different Howard Hughes. The contrasting descriptions have been furnished, moreover, by equally reliable sources.

The first Howard Hughes began to emerge in the 1960s. Most of the time, he was rational, even brilliant. But he had irrational periods, which began to last longer and longer. He also developed a strange phobia against microbes.

Once, he contemplated purchasing a house in the Los Angeles area. He ordered his security forces to seal off six prospective homes, permitting no one, not even the owners, to enter. Not until these houses had been free of human contamination for three months would Hughes inspect them.

By 1964, his aides already had started to worry about his mental and physical deterioration. Sometimes, they couldn't get him to sign papers that were vital to his own interests. In a sworn statement, former aide Robert Maheu had told about discussing the problem with Hughes' chief of staff, Frank W. Gay, at Los Angeles' Bel Air Hotel.

"Frank W. Gay discussed with attorney Edward Morgan of Washington, D.C. and myself the advisability of initiating a plan whereby effectual control of the Hughes Tool Company might be worked out by a very selective group of a few individuals," Maheu attests, "in the event certain physical or mental problems should arise insofar as Mr. Hughes was concerned."

Gay stated, according to Maheu, "that he feared Mr. Hughes' mental condition might cause him to crack up at any moment and he wanted to be in a position so as to take advantage of such an eventuality."

Morgan recalled the discussion but not in any "sinister context." According to Morgan's recollection, Gay wanted to protect Hughes from himself and insure stable management of his interests.

Not long afterward, the eccentric billionaire disappeared into a Las Vegas penthouse. He would permit no one to come near him nor to clean his immediate surroundings. Thus the man who feared germs was soon wallowing in his own filth.

Witnesses report that Hughes became "an emaciated invalid with white hair down to his shoulders, shaggy eyebrows, a straggly beard and grotesquely long fingernails and toenails."

Dr. Harold L. Feikes, who was summoned to the penthouse to give Hughes blood transfusions in October 1974, reported to the sheriff that Hughes was in a catatonic state with dangerously low hemoglobin count.

Yet the following month, the phantom billionaire vanished from Las Vegas. He was reported thereafter to be lodged in a series of penthouses in Nassau, Managua, Vancouver, London and Acapulco.

On Feb. 17, 1972, Hughes was hauled aboard a boat in the Bahamas in a stretcher-like wheelchair. The skipper, Bob Rehak, said Hughes had hair down to his shoulders, a stringy beard and yellowed, curling toenails about two inches long. Other witnesses have given similar descriptions.

Yet astonishingly, a different Howard Hughes was seen by reputable witnesses during this same period. U.S. Ambassador Turner Shelton, invited to meet Hughes aboard his executive jet, described him as "about six feet, three inches tall, very thin, weighing from 140-150 pounds, graying hair and neatly trimmed Van Dyke-type beard."

Apparently the same trim, distinguished man with the Van Dyke beard was seen in London by Nevada's Gov. Mike O'Callaghan and Gaming Board Chairman Phil Hanflin. They had made a detailed study of Hughes, so they would be sure they were dealing directly with him. He answered every question with precise accuracy, recalling obscure, trivial details from his past.

This second Hughes was clean, alert, affable. He shook hands firmly, with no apparent fear of human contact. Was he the same man with unkempt hair and toenails, who had become a hermit in his own luxurious penthouse? Or was he a double, who had been carefully coached on Hughes' background?

We have established this much. In the 1960s, a movie actor named Brooks Randal was hired occasionally to impersonate Hughes. This began as a ruse to deceive process servers. We have been unable, however, to locate Randal who was last reported in Colorado.

Women ministers: Their numbers increase

ST. LOUIS — New Haven and Kirksville don't have a lot in common at first glance. New Haven is a German farm settlement on the Missouri River with a population of nearly 1,500. Kirksville, by contrast, has a population of over 15,000 and is an education and service center for the northeast part of the state.

But they do have in common two examples of a growing trend in the church today: women pastors.

The ministries of Clara Mae Jacobsin in New Haven and the Rev. Ann Hunt in Kirksville are different in focus. Mrs. Jacobsin preaches to the 172-member Emory Memorial United Methodist Church in New Haven every Sunday morning and then drives 10 miles to Senate Grove, where she conducts another worship service at the Immanuel United Methodist Church.

A career elementary school teacher, Mrs. Jacobsin entered the ministry only recently, after the death of her husband, the Rev. John Jacobsin, in 1974. When Rev. Jacobsin first became ill, the two congregations asked Mrs. Jacobsin to preach and conduct services. After his death, she was asked to continue as pastor and will be completing her first year in that role this coming June. Mrs. Jacobsin is studying for her license to preach, the first step in United Methodist clergy education. She plans to continue her teaching career along with her pastoral duties.

"This is the most rewarding and challenging thing I have ever done," Mrs. Jacobsin said. "Any difficulty I have had has only been in filling John's shoes, but it is a glorious life, and I wouldn't trade it for anything."

The vivacious teacher of the New Haven Elementary School first grade class said being a woman pastor has not been a source of conflict or problems and she attributes her acceptance to the "beautiful" church members and the other supportive clergy in the community.

Ministering to a different type of congregation is the Rev. Ann Hunt. She is United Methodist campus minister at Northeast Missouri State University in Kirksville. An ordained elder in the United Methodist Church since 1973, Rev. Hunt is completing her first year in a setting which she said has opened new ministries and new avenues in her chosen career.

From her experience in campus work, and previously as a parish pastor, Rev. Hunt has observed some changes in her own attitudes toward women ministers and the church. "I feel I've gone through a period when I didn't understand women as having something new or different to say to the church. In the last four years, I have seen there are differences in the experiences of women that cause us to look at some things differently; our processes are different, and I feel good about that. I feel it is important that women be in the ministry."

A graduate of Saint Paul School of Theology in Kansas City, Rev. Hunt said it has never occurred to her in college that she would be a pastor in a local church, "but the doors opened to the parish and I felt comfortable there." Now in the campus ministry, Rev. Hunt said her new challenges center around the excitement of being with young people who are asking questions about their faith. "I feel that one of my tasks is to show students that the Christian faith stands up to the same kind of intellectual honesty as other disciplines and that it should be considered as seriously as other disciplines."

The role as a woman campus minister has not been a source of any serious problems, Rev. Hunt said. Students at the Wesley Foundation who have known only male clergy and find the young woman unusual are "growing and working with the problem," she said. "There are many areas of my work where students would not have come if I had been a man."

People with style never make mistakes

By ERMA BOMBECK

If there is anything I admire in this world, it's people with "style."

Like the guy I read about last week who broke out of prison, secured a horse at the gate, and galloped down the road to freedom like a country gentleman.

That's "style."

Some of us go through life with the labels hanging out of our dresses, and our stomachs rumbling like a volcano during benediction. Our fresh chickens leak through the bottom of our grocery bags. Our curlers make creases in our faces that only surgery can erase, and the first day we wear white shoes, we get an unseasonal snowfall.

I have a friend with "style." Her name is Wheezie. Wheezie has a snout full of style and confidence. When she sees a line, she goes to the head of it. Whenever she drives to the supermarket, she aims for a space right outside the door (Sand gets it).

One day as I slid into the car next to Wheezie, she said, "Your belt is caught in the door and is flapping on the outside."

I opened the door and reeled it in. Suddenly I became resentful. "Wheezie, do you know what it is like to go through life with your pantyhose on backward?"

"What are you talking about?" she asked.

"I'm talking about you. You never perspire. You never bite into a ham sandwich and get a clump of fat. You always have the right change for the restroom. You never rush up to a familiar face at the airport and say, 'Hi there. Nice to see you again,' and realize it's the

Cut off above the heel and below the elastic top, fold in half and you have cuffs. It is best to zigzag stitch next to the cutting line before cutting to prevent raveling. —ESTHER

DEAR POLLY — Many of us do not realize how much shampoo is left in those tubes you cannot see through, after you think you have squeezed out the last bit. I slit such a tube toward the top and was surprised at all that remained. I put this remaining shampoo in a plastic bag, and later used it to scrub my husband's shirt collars before washing them. —D.H.E.

desire? I recommend a physical checkup for those who have frequent nightmares. The reason may be physical.

Dear Ann Landers: That letter about dreams gave me the courage to write about something that has been bugging me for over a year. I've been having the same horrible dream at least four nights a week. It has to do with the murder of someone very close to me. Does it mean anything when a person keeps having the same dream over and over? —Black Nights.

Dear Black: Yes, it does. Go to a counselor and talk about this recurring nightmare. There's a message there — one you don't want to face up to. It's time you came to grips with it.

Dear Ann Landers: Stop dreaming? Never! The person who wrote that letter has got to be crazy.

I wouldn't give up my dreams for anything. I meet a much classier bunch of people in my dreams than I could ever meet in my everyday life. I can hardly wait to go to bed at night. Sign me — Beautiful Dreamer

Dear Beautiful: How lovely! Too bad the people you meet in your dreams don't know you when you're awake.

What's proudest? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers

Reader says crazy dreams are clues

Dear Ann Landers: I was surprised at your answer to "Mrs. No Name" who asked if there was any way she could prevent herself from dreaming. Almost every morning she awakened exhausted or terrified because of some wild, crazy dream.

Why didn't you tell her that dreams are a true reflection of a person's mental state? We dream about unresolved problems, deep-seated fears, hidden desires, and even our trivial annoyances. All these feelings come out in our dreams.

You should have told "No

Name" to accept her dreams as "clues" to the secrets she is hiding from herself. She should learn to interpret them and use the knowledge to know herself better. — Sweet Slumber In Oshkosh

Dear Sweet: Dreams do indeed have special significance, but I'm not about to suggest to a lay person that he interpret his own dreams. This is a highly specialized field and even the experts can be wrong.

For example: Say you dream your mother was killed in an accident. How do you know if it is a deep-seated fear or a hidden

Fred Towns scores ten Smith-less Mo. All-Stars lose to Kansas 123-112

SALINA, Kan. (AP) — What the Missouri college all-stars needed Saturday night was a good Willie Smith.

Smith, Missouri's sharpshooting guard, and his Kansas State counterpart, Chuckie Williams, were originally scheduled to lead the Missouri and Kansas all-star squads in their exhibition basketball game at Marymount College.

But Smith tendered his regrets and journeyed off the Aloha Classic in Honolulu, accompanied by Williams.

The difference was that the Kansas contingent still had Carl Gerlach.

The rangy 6-foot-10 center from Kansas State punished the Missouri squad with 21 points enroute to a 123-112 Kansas win and was effective enough on the backboards to claim the game's most valuable player award.

Gerlach found the basket with 10:46 left in the first half to give the Sunflower team a 33-32 lead it never relinquished. Kansas stretched lead-vantage to 70-56 early in the second half and the closest the Missouri stars could come after that was nine points.

Lewis McKinney of St. Louis University led the Missouri team with 20 points.

The dunk shot was legal in the contest and 12-minute quarters were used, instead of the usual 20-minute halves.

APRIL 12, 1976. ON THIS DAY ONE HUNDRED AND FOURTEEN YEARS AGO, THE FIRST SHOTS OF THE CIVIL WAR WERE FIRED. AT DAWN OF THAT DAY, TWO ROCKETS ARCHED THEIR WAY TO FORT SUMTER IN CHARLESTON HARBOR. IT WAS THE BEGINNING OF A 36 HOUR BOMBARDMENT BY SOUTHERN TROOPS UNDER GENERAL BEAUREGARD. MAJOR ROBERT ANDERSON COMMANDING THE FORT HELD OUT UNTIL ALMOST EVERY CRUISE OF FOOD WAS GONE AND THE FORT ITSELF WAS ON FIRE. WHEN HE FINALLY CAPITULATED, THE CONFEDERATES IN A GALLANT GESTURE PERMITTED HIM TO LEAVE WITH ALL HIS MEN.

THIS DAY
APRIL 12, 1861 — ON THIS DAY ONE HUNDRED AND FOURTEEN YEARS AGO, THE FIRST SHOTS OF THE CIVIL WAR WERE FIRED. AT DAWN OF THAT DAY, TWO ROCKETS ARCHED THEIR WAY TO FORT SUMTER IN CHARLESTON HARBOR. IT WAS THE BEGINNING OF A 36 HOUR BOMBARDMENT BY SOUTHERN TROOPS UNDER GENERAL BEAUREGARD. MAJOR ROBERT ANDERSON COMMANDING THE FORT HELD OUT UNTIL ALMOST EVERY CRUMB OF FOOD WAS GONE AND THE FORT ITSELF WAS ON FIRE WHEN HE FINALLY CAPITULATED. THE CONFEDERATES IN A GALLANT GESTURE PERMITTED HIM TO LEAVE WITH ALL HIS MEN.
